Dear Diary,

When the moon arose, the most craziest thing happened! The Grandma statue I had built had actually come to life! I was so amazed that when I tried to speak, words attempted to come out but couldn't. Then, I felt a spark of excitement flowing in me. As I reached to jump off the ladder, something shocking happened.

A few seconds later, Grandma grabbed me so fast that I screamed my lungs out. As she dragged me across the ocean that was as gentle as fluff from a pillow, my heart was beating faster and faster and I tried to get her to stop. Then, we dove into the ocean on our way to the big city. Before I could even blink, Grandma hopped 6 buildings in one jump and met the city. Although I was a bit worried, it was quite amazing to see the that the city's lights were as bright as a million stars in the sky. Finally, we arrived at a house that was as lonely as a widow. When I took a step forward, I was shocked to find out it was the house that Grandma would never be able to finish but that didn't stop me. Suddenly Grandma showed me though her twinkling eyes a way to finish the house

Unfortunately I had to use the parts of Grandma to finish it. I quickly hesitated but Grandma insisted I do it. From Today I know Grandma would be proud of me because I have built a School for young Architects.
