

Sun Player

The moon hesitated over the gloomy village. Whilst Ah Kin Mai, a priest, stayed awake for many hours just to declare months of pure darkness, and when the sun is not on duty that means the moon is in charge. They shook in fright as he finds out that the crops will die and without crops everyone will perish. The next morning, Ah Kin Mai wanted to announce the news so he blew a note in his goat horn to share the horrifying news.

In the beautiful, sandy beach Yag Fong Tong, who was a brilliant shell fighter, was boxing with his friends. Like his dad who was a shell boxing champion, Yag had a skill for fast punching and his grey eyes glowed in bright sky, "BE Quiet" Yag warned, listen I can hear something. The goat horn was rumbling through the misty air. Yag listened to Ah Kin Mai's speech. Yag Fong Tong whispered, "Are the Gods lazy? They are not even coming out!" To his friends, "If I was a God I will not be as sluggish as Kinich Ahau."

When Yag Fong Tong was shell boxing, the sky turned from a light blue to a deep red. Suddenly the booming voice of Kinich Ahau explained, "How dare a minuscule creature take on a large tongue?" Yag rapidly responded, "O-Oh hi Kinich I did not mean to offend you like that..." Straight after that Kinich Ahau said, "I have challenged you to a shell boxing match so I can see the strengths of a young who dared to insult a God. And if you win, you will earn forgiveness for you and your village."