

SWINGATE TIMES

Monday 14th July

LIPSTICK ON STRIKE!

On Monday evening, in a house in Kent a girl's lipsticks went on strike because they were treated unfairly.

When the girl came home from the skate park she discovered that her lipstick table was empty. Where her lipsticks had been, a pile of letters were on the table.

They were from her lipsticks. Rosie felt upset as she read about how unhappy and embarrassed her lipstickees were.

"I'm so fed up. Rosie doesn't use lip stick's well." Said one of the pile of LIPSTICK'S.

After hunting for ages, Rosie found her lipsticks.

Some were in her shoe, under her bed and in the wardrobe.

"I didn't know that they were upset," Rosie explained. We have been informed that Rosie has brought more lipsticks and a science teacher to make more.

Because of the chat with Rosie the lipsticks have agreed to go home.

The lipsticks were very pleased that she got a new lipstick and even a lip stick sticker that says "Please use me nicely." We will let you know if any changes happen.