

A Fascinating Winter Day

As snow fell, a few people were up from the previous winter - falling of snow quietly falling from the dark winter clouds into their roofs. Slowly, small, unique snowflakes fell from the dark, grey sky around glistening over melting all the hovering less dance side for side. Slowly, the village turned into a winter wonderland as everybody's children screamed with excitement.

As more family, woke up, the snow laid down as quick as a bird gliding down to the ground. Calmly, enchanting, happy snowmen were being built all around making people smile. Finally, hot chocolate was being given out bringing joy and warmth to everyone.

After every drop was drunk, everybody had a delicious taste of chocolate milkshake in their watering mouth. As quick as a flash, neighborhood games were hearts all over that village. Rarely, a small of hot sugared drinks hit some noses and that gurgles small puffed people there. When all of them were chugged down, people ran around to get rid of the gurgles getting in their mouth. Elderly people felt happy as they watched little kids having the time of their lives with snow hills.

By Daisy.

As the powerless sun slowly drifted away, the villagers happy souls got happier and happier every second. As breezes get colder, shivering families wandered to their warm cosy houses huddling "what a day we've had!" As dusk came, families baked roast dinner as scripplers as mice pies.
 As everyone fell asleep, this day ended with an out with a calming, lovely voice. What an Enchanting day it was!
