

Norman's Adventure

After a while, Norman began to feel normal life. He would see beautiful, new things. He dreamt of going to a desert. One sunny, morning, he slowly went up the disgusting, smelly chimney so he can start his adventure. As he slowly towards his dream, he started to see the view of the colorful, wide hills and react as spiky as a cactus pines.

Whilst looking in the desert, Norman saw a cross something. Sticking out of the gold, smooth sand was a shield with a orange, shiny star in the middle. Eventually, he realised he had the key to open the door. However, Norman was lost. He was alone. Panic set in. He was scared. He needed a plan to get home. As he was thinking, he decided to pick up the shield. Suddenly, he felt a lightning in front the shield.

Confidently, he held on it for easy life and shouted happy. Norman felt very happy and he was now heading home. He went through the dark, gloomy woods it was as dark as coal. He went home the right time.

His family came half an hour later which was good.
