Dear children of the future,

I hope you like this letter! I have some marvellous news... satellites have discovered a brand new planet. How exciting is that! The answer is Very!! Think of all the new possibilities that is.

Let me tell you all about this amazing planet. Firstly, it is twelve times bigger than Earth, so if you were to go and explore the planet you would not know where to start! The atmosphere is way more unusual than any other planets, because it has got all of the gases that you could think of like oxygen, nitrogen, hydrogen, helium and carbon dioxide. How weird is that? Amazingly, the day is 24 hours of paradise sun and the night is only 6 hours so all the people there can get up and start to enjoy the days again.

Secondly, there are loads of good sites like mountains, trees, rivers, lakes, beaches, seas, restaurants and personally my favourite sunsets, attractive, stunning sunsets. The lakes are SO clean because the waterfalls right next to them splash crystal, clear water into the lake, also gilling it up for all the cute, teeny living animals and of course huge ones too. Did you know that the landwellers are rainbow people and they used to be humans but they turned into these weird, strange aliens? But don't worry they were all asked if they wanted to and most of them said yes. The babies have red, orange and yellow colours on their skin but the adults have the whole rainbow on their skin. How strange is that!

Oh so you are probably wondering how do these animals talk. If you are then I will happily tell you the answer. The truth is they speak their own little language called Oogahboga and the reason why they don't speak French or any of our languages is because they don't want anyone else to know what they are saying. How suspicious is that!

With so much to explore, I can't wait to see what else this planet holds. I hope you had a nice time reading this letter.

Yours excitedly,

Luna ☺

PS. I think the planet is called Rainbow World.
