Thursday 29th January

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to express my concern about how hedgehogs are getting killed in the UK. Did you know that 150,000 hedgehogs are getting killed once a year? Would you like it if you were a hedgehog who was afraid to cross the road?

Firstly one thing you could introduce is Hedgehog Highways. Hedgehog Highways is a safe place that hedgehogs can go through so they do not get hurt by the cars. If hedgehogs use the tunnel then less hedgehogs will cross the road so less hedgehogs will get hurt or killed. It is crucial because hedgehogs need to cross the road for shelter, good and mates.

In addition to this, reduce the speed limit of cars which means the car can stop quicker. If they reduce the speed limit then the cars can stop quicker and the hedgehog can cross the road. Hedgehogs are slow and small so we need to protect the hedgehog so they can keep the pest away.

For these reasons, it is important that the hedgehog live because they can keep the pest away for good. I know you would take responsibility for actions. Would you like to be a hedgehog saviour

Your sincerely

Logan Melton
