

Little Red Riding Hood

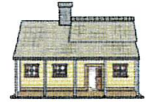

Little Red Riding Hood went on a path,
To see her Grandma who needed a bath,
Along the path a wolf who was a stray,
Told the poor girl to go the wrong way.

The wolf had a Grandma-styled meal,
So the pathway swap was a good deal,
Little Red Riding Hood went on her way,
And the cunning wolf snuck away.

Knock knock. "Can I come in?" said the girl,
Who's hair was in a curl.
"Grandma, I've got your medicine,"
"And soon you will be better again."

The hungry wolf licked, and he was ready to bite,
But he didn't know what was going to happen that night.

Bang went the shotgun and the wolf was now dead,
And Grandma crawled out of the headless wolf's head.
