The Tragedy Tucan

On top of the Snowy mountains were penguins Caching fish, while playful polar bears rolled down the mountains. It was a usual day until a helicopter came out of nowere. Sitting by the window was a Cowl full bird but it was not a peacock. What could this mysterious bird be? It was.... two energetic tucans with a Phenix!?

When the tucans took a look around they started to feel dizzy because of their hunger. Unfortunatly they didint know that there wasint worms in Antarticar. What were they going to do now? For a cuple of hours, they looked for something that looked like their delectable treat "I'm finally Starved and there isent a single worm in Antarticar!" Wailed the tucans. The tucans Cowed for go back to the place where their tummys would never be rumbling. As quickly as they could, they hopped in and rushed to the windor seat. But they relized they were days away.

Suddenly, uncountable, colorful sweets came from the Sky. Smartly, the Phenix tied a strong rope to their tiny, numbing tummys otherwise their wings would get too tired. Soon after, they began their long journey back home. The poor Annabs went through hunger, snow and boring hot sun. A day later, they finally got back to their cozy, little rainforest. After that, they settled down for a warm and sweet feast!
